“ Perhaps one of the funniest memories I have with my grandfather was during a 4th of July get together with the family. My dad lit one of those little plastic fireworks that would spin up in the air. Turns out one of the fireworks decided to go right down grandpa's overalls. He danced around trying to get away from it but that little spinning thing just wouldn't let him go. To this day our family calls those fireworks "grandpa getters". I remember watching old Western movies all day, being read stories, and as I got older, talking with him about how much Military Airborne School whooped both of our butts (surprisingly not much changed over the years.) I am glad that he isn't in pain anymore and I am glad that he lived his life surrounded by amazing women like my Grandma Leanna, Mom Deanna, Aunt Karen, and Aunt Marilyn. I will miss him more than words can describe.
