“ The Morgan Co. Library was Jim's second home when he was growing up. We all felt we were his personal librarians. Because he loved to study history anytime we got a new book on American history we made sure it was held for Jim, he was always so grateful. His shy, humble spirit stood out to all of us. We always looked forward to his visits when he came home to visit, he made sure to come and see his librarians. My heart is with all.
