“ I have known you all my life. We shared a bedroom as kids and you used to read to me. I thought you were a princess and argued you were the prettiest girl on Kensington. We also fought like sisters do. I will miss you, you never complained, always smiling or laughing no matter what the circumstances. You leave a beautiful legacy of children and grandchildren. God bless and keep them all. Till we meet again. (the picture is me, mom and Betty around 1955)
