“ I have had the pleasure of knowing you for many years, during which we dated a few times, and I am grateful for the time our paths crossed. Your rough exterior hid a heart that was truly one of the kindest I've encountered. Your passion for helping others was inspiring, and your ability to find laughter in dark times was a testament to your strength. Your youthful spirit was something that drew me to you. As a hardworking individual with a strong sense of pride, you also had a gentle side. I miss our daily calls where we would talk about life and share laughs. I'm comforted knowing you're no longer in pain. I'll hold onto the memories until we meet again. Rest well, nerd.

“ I believe you rest in well-earned peace now. You carried too much on your shoulders and yet you had the kindest and most generous heart, and you were so loved. I'll remember you in every strong gust of wind (if you know, you know). Thank you for being in my life for a time. RIP.
