“ Mom had talent in the arts. From painting with oils to ceramics she could make everything beautiful. The times I remember are the fried bread with pear honey, Home made beef jerky, Working in the garden with her if you want to call it a garden. More of a weed patch. The jean jackets she made for all of us with embroidering on the back. The leather work she could do and taught me how too. The time she spent with all of us at school projects even when she had her own things to take care of. From all the walks and trips to the DQ on 40 hwy in Kansas City, which was 4 miles from we lived, To walking through the woods at the Lake of The Ozarks we always had fun. There are so many memories and lessons learned with her just no way can you put them in words. The world is just a little darker without her.

*Ed,
We did learn a lot from mom. How to make animals look real when we painted them in oils or ceramics. Between mom and grandma I learned most of my cooking skills and yes I dump cook just like they did. I have an empty place in my heart for her. I miss talking to her on the phone.*

“ Mom was a wonderful mom and friend to all of us. She had a big heart and no child went without if she knew a child needed something. When we were little and still living in Kansas City, MO we would go for walks and one time we went for a walk up by the diner there was a $20.00 bill on the ground that I happen to see and picked it up. I said “mom, I just found some money and it was folded up. I unfolded it and found out I had $20.00 in my hands. I asked mom what should I do and she said go into the diner and see if anyone had lost some money and everyone said no so the money was mine. Keep in mind that the money was a big deal for us because mom had divorced our father and was raising us on her own. I asked her about what to do with it. She said I got to chose what to do. I gave the money to mom so we could have food in the house and the only thing I wanted was a toy for each of us and one treat and she could have the rest.that money bought us enough food to last the month and that made me proud to have her as my mom
